I am needing to run ActiveX to use some billing software for my medical practice.. Im not a fan of using a VM just to run a single lousy program Its very flawed thinking but it is safe (Windows has a very very large share) and MS pushed it during the days where they were pushing IE as a web browser.. Hi Sammich, I realise this is a very old thread, but Im hoping you see this We also boast an active community focused on purchasing decisions and technical aspects of the iPhone, iPod, iPad, and Mac platforms.

I dont just need IE to work on my mac I need IE AND ActiveX to be functional I have a similar problem in that a company I just started working for wants me to install their Excel workbook that generates prewritten emails through MS Outlook and uses ActiveX.. Activex Controls For Excel Mac Doesnt SupportIt was designed for Windows, and I have a Macbook running Excel for Mac 2011, so its giving me all kinds of error messages and says the Mac doesnt support ActiveX and lets me open a read-only version, saying that if I make changes or try to save it, it will delete the unsupported content.. Activex Controls For Excel Mac The SoftwareIs there any way to use ActiveX on mac The software is a web based client but it has to run ActiveX on IE.

It made the web richer back in the IE 3 0 days and people kept with it since IE had massive market share.. Will this fix work for me If I install VirtualBox and an IE (you think IE6 is best Or IE11), will the Excel program somehow find what it needs to generate the emails (Im assuming its ActiveX that generates them) Thanks in advance. Apple Airplay Download For Mac
